Register for “Booker and Beyond: Analyzing Sentencing Reform and Exploring New Research Directions.”

Webinar Date: December 7, 2021, 1:00 pm Eastern

This webinar features a discussion of previously published research on the U.S. Supreme Court’s 2005 Booker decision, which effectively transformed the United States Sentencing Guidelines from a mandatory, to an advisory, system.

The presentation will address selected research findings from the last 15 years. Individual participants will briefly review their previous research findings with particular attention paid to the analytic methods used.

Presentations will be followed by a brief participant discussion covering the strengths and weaknesses of the various analytic methods and implications for future research. Finally, audience members will be encouraged to join the discussion, ask questions, and offer thoughts and insights on the topic.
